Residents take heart — the most offensive motifs in this graphic satanic graffiti defacing the seawall by the Washington Ave. pier have been covered over. The mural, which is to be used in the movie "The Brotherhood," will be painted over before the filming company leaves town. (Echo staff photo by Jeff Shimizu)

Set work near completion for movie "The Brotherhood"

BY JEFFREY SHIMIZU
Large holes in the beach, satanic graffiti on the walls? What is all this?

It is location preparation work for local filming of the movie "The Brotherhood," starring Brian Bosworth of the Seattle Seahawks.

The production company is filming all across the Gulf Coast, from Alabama to Louisiana. Filming is expected to begin in Bay St. Louis in late June or early July, a publicity spokesman for the production company said.

A spokesman for Crown Equipment, which is doing some of the work, said filming could begin as early as Monday.

Some of the preparation work has had local residents concerned. The main point of concern, satanic graffiti painted on the wall in front of Big "E" Grocery, has been modified in response to complaints.

The film company used numerous cans of spray paint to create the eye-catching graffiti.

Mike Cuevas, clerk of the Bay St. Louis City Council, said the film company has signed an agreement to paint over the graffiti before leaving town. The Chamber of Commerce is also working to find a cover for the wall at the present time.

Olivia Roland, director of the Chamber of Commerce, visited residents in the area of the wall Thursday afternoon to inform them about the graffiti and to assure them that it would be removed.

According to Roland, set directors have since painted over the most offensive parts of the mural.

There is also a large pit dug in the beach. This pit is to be filled with water and used for mud wrestling.

Hancock road, bridge budget may fall short

BY TRACI BONNEY
The Hancock County road and bridge budget may have a shortfall of four to five percent, if an awaited attorney general's office opinion is negative. Chancery Clerk E. Michael

Necaise said at a Thursday workshop meeting of the county board of supervisors that the state auditor's office recently told the board a 1987 law prohibits the board from using general tax revenues for road and bridge work. This means the $1.084 million road and bridge budget will be reduced by $120,000.

The bulk of the budget — $654,000 — goes to salaries and benefits, while about $85,000 is earmarked for fuel and about $100,000 more is for repairs and parts.

Board attorney Gerald Gex said he is awaiting an opinion on the situation from the attorney general.

"My interpretation is that the law doesn't say we can't put general county funds into road and bridge, but that we can't use road and bridge for anything else," Gex said.

In addition, auditors recently found a $68,000 interfund loan made to the road and bridge maintenance account in 1986, a loan that was never repaid. This loan, added to a $50,000 interfund loan made earlier this year, totals another $116,000 out of the road and bridge budget.

The two loans must be repaid by Sept. 30, the end of the fiscal year, Necaise said.

"My question is, can road and bridge make a loan to pay these two off, then pay the loan back over the next three years or so?" he said.

current heat or the freeze in January and February.

Cospelich added the fishermen have caught a mixture of fish, but have not caught any speckled trout yet. She said the trout will come later on in the season as it gradually picks up.

Tommy Bordages of Bordages Brothers Marina and Shipyard in Bayou Caddy in Lakeshore said the season may be slow because of the freeze or because there is a lot of fresh water passing through local waters from the Pearl and Wolfe Rivers.

Bordages said, "The heat slows down the season. We usually catch enough fish before the heat comes, but not this year."

Bud Moran of Bay Marina in Bay St. Louis said the reason the season has been slower than normal may be because of the late freeze and the rains.

Bill Pepper of Pepper's Discovery Bay Marina & Resort in Pass Christian said the reason for the slow season is due to the damage from the poor weather earlier this year that killed off the fish in the area.

He added "The freeze retarded everything. It depleted the fish food chain."

He also said that some smaller fish are killed by shrimp trawlers and never grow up to be caught by the fishermen. He said the season is gradually growing and he expects July 1 will be much better.

Jim Bradley of Jimmy and Dian Fishing Camp in Pass Christian, said this season has been one of the worst in the last ten to twelve years due to the adverse weather conditions. He said, "It had the makings of a good season, but the fresh water and hard freeze caused it to turn out bad."

Bradley added, "This is not only a local problem, fishermen from coast-to-coast in Florida through Texas are experiencing

Slow fishing season blamed on weather

BY LIZ HAAS
Reports from local sports fishermen indicate the fishing season has not produced as plentiful a supply of fish as in previous years.

Marie Hall, manager of LaF-rance Fishing Camp in Ansley, said the season is off this year and there are no fish to be found. She added June is usually a good month for the fishing season, but it has been very slow this year. Hall said this may be a result of the flooding in the early spring which caused the water to be dirty. She added fishermen have caught plenty of catfish but few flounders and red fish. Small trout have been found in area marshes.

Allie Cospelich of Joe's Bayou Marina in Bay St. Louis also commented on the bad season. She said it may be due to the Saturday power outage affects 3,800 customers

BY JANET MCQUEEN
A power outage early Saturday morning left approximately 3,800 homes in Bay St. Louis and Waveland without electricity for almost three hours.

Mississippi Power spokesman Buddy Eller said a problem with a transformer in a substation in Bay St. Louis caused the blackout at 2:45 a.m. Power was restored at approximately 5:30 a.m.

Power company employees are still investigating the exact cause of the malfunction.

Bay school budget calls for tax increase

Local homeowners could see a raise in their property taxes if a proposed five percent increase is approved.

The increase, proposed by the Bay St. Louis-Waveland school district, is expected to generate $198,700.

The district plans to use these revenues to fund a guidance counselor, middle school computer lab aide, a TV instructional library aide, third grade instructional assistants, a part-time nurse, a five percent salary increase for non-certified personnel and a vocational program at Stennis Field.

The proposals were outlined by district business manager Garland Cuevas at a recent public hearing for the school district.

A public hearing on the 1990-1991 school budget, which totals $7,919,218, is scheduled for June 28, 7 p.m., at the board meeting room on Carroll Avenue.

The board will adopt the final draft of the budget July 9.

If the board adopts the budget with the five percent increase, the city council is mandated by the state to set the tax levy to fund it, said Bay St. Louis Mayor Edward A. "Eddie" Favre.

the same problem."

Terry's Seafood in Bayou Caddy purchases fish from commercial fishermen. Kevin Ladner said the season has been slower than expected, especially from local commercial fishermen.

He said, "They come in spurts. Some nights are much better than others. The fishermen are experiencing the problem of having to hunt down scattered fish."

Ron Grove, public relations director for the Bureau of Marine Resources, said at the beginning of the season, they had anticipated an average to below average season.

He said this was due to the large influx of fresh water from rivers in the hard rains that killed a lot of post-larval shrimp.

Rain counts were way above normal, according to Grove. The researchers found less post-larvals than in previous years, so they inferred it would be a slow season.

Grove said, "We don't expect it to get any better because decline begins after the opening day."

"hood" is a fictional drama about an undercover cop, played by Bosworth, who infiltrates a motorcycle gang. While with the motorcycle gang, he discovers a plot to assassinate a political figure.

The movie is supposed to include several action scenes. Unconfirmed reports are that one of the scenes features a chase across the Bay bridge with several of the bikers ending up in the water.

The gangs leaders are being played by Lance Henriksen and William Forsythe. The movie is being directed by Bruce Malmuth, who last directed "Hard to Kill" with Charles Segal.

Shooting of the movie, along the Gulf Coast, is scheduled to be completed in seven to eight weeks and should be released in January of 1991.

"I think we could re-open the appropriations we have already made. The money we're looking for to fund BEST is less than one percent of the appropriations that are done right now."

"I think the money is in the budget. It's such a matter of setting priorities, and I think funding this is more important than all the appropriations we've already passed."

One other option that was discussed was to amend the lottery bill to make it a bingo legalization bill. Frankiewicz said that failed, too, "but not because anyone was anti-bingo, I think, but because everyone wanted a clean bill and wanted to vote the lottery up or down on its own."

Sen. Margaret (Wootsie) Tate of Picayune, who represents a portion of Hancock County, voted against the lottery bill.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Last week we received several telephone calls reporting a house burning on St. Francis Street.

This was one time when there was a fire, and it was a controlled fire being conducted by the National Association of Fire Investigators.

The burning was held here because there was a perfect structure, and the owners wanted the old house leveled.

This was not the first time for such an exercise to be conducted in Bay St. Louis as I know of another one several years ago.

Fire investigators from across the nation were involved in the fire which was really a training exercise.

I know Bay Fire Chief Andrew Lizana is very proud to have been able to provide a building in Bay St. Louis and thus give his department's firefighters some extra special training.

This past week was really a hot one as the heat index reached the 115 mark.

It would not have taken too long to fry an egg on the sidewalk.

I cannot recall such a hot June, as we usually have this type of weather in late July or August.

Possibly we have already had our hot weather for the season, or at least I am hoping that it is that way.

One thing is for sure, we can talk about the weather, but we cannot do anything about it.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

Action needed now on the S&L crisis

I know you're hearing a lot out of Washington these days about the spiraling savings and loan industry crisis.

Unfortunately Washington seems more focused on fixing blame on particular individuals, government bureaucracies, and regulators than in taking action on the problem. There's certainly plenty of blame to go around, but not enough solutions.

Hundreds of savings and loans ran into trouble in the 1980s. They plunged into a wide range of speculative investments, ranging from real estate ventures to "junk bonds" which proved to be failures.

Bailout legislation signed into law 10 months ago assumed that the government would end up taking over about 400 of these ailing institutions, but regulators now fear that the number could go as high as 800 institutions with almost one-third of the assets in the industry.

The cost of rescuing the industry's problem institutions could exceed $200 billion over 10 years, far higher than originally projected.

So, what is the solution? I have some thoughts that are somewhat different from those now overseeing this problem. To prevent this crisis from ever happening again, the federal government should be cracking down harder on savings and loan officers. For those who break thrift laws, there should be vigorous prosecution.

To date, few of these officers who squandered their customers' savings in risky ventures have been prosecuted or punished. That is a deplorable situation.

But I am encouraged to learn that more investigations are now underway which could lead to holding savings and loan officers accountable for their actions. These investigations should be intensified.

A second solution lies with the mandate of the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) which was created by the Congress in the thrift bailout legislation to oversee the liquidation of insolvent savings institutions.

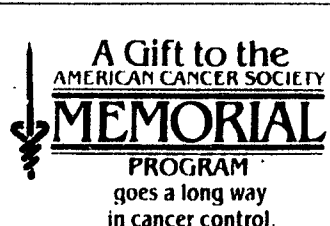

Ten months after its creation, the RTC is not helping the savings and loan crisis but instead is compounding it by worrying more over enacting new regulations and not doing this to help than by taking needed actions.

I know of situations where buyers immediately willing to come in and take over a failing thrift have been discouraged from doing so by the RTC because of incompetence, an inadequate staff, or just plain fear of making a decision.

The RTC after being stalled all these months needs to get moving, stop summarily taking over savings and loans and start making the hard decisions.

The RTC's energies should be geared toward helping ailing thrifts to recover and not just seizing properties for the purpose of becoming federal landlords. Any assets which must be seized should be disposed of as quickly as possible.

Redirecting the RTC at some point may require additional congressional action, but for now, too little has been done to deal with the savings and loan crisis. The RTC should get moving!

Tree ordinance needed for Bay

It is hoped that the City of Bay St. Louis will soon have in place a tree ordinance.

We are blessed with very large and beautiful live oak trees, some of which reach an age of 300 or 400 years we are told.

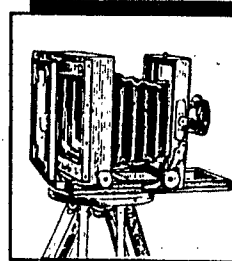

The life span of these trees is really hard to imagine when one thinks of the numerous hurricanes they have to withstand over the years.

It takes many lifetimes for such a tree to reach maturity, and along the way these live oak trees need to be protected.

We have many of these gracious long-living trees among the residences and businesses of Bay St. Louis, and every now and then one or more are removed for one reason or another.

Many communities, as the old saying goes, "would give a right arm," just to have one or two of these wonderful trees.

Time is running out; a tree ordinance is needed now.

Laville Bremer, Mrs. Dorothy Forsee and the Kenneth Thompsons, members of this group are looking for more talent—maybe someone with tenor possibilities—someone who can sing bass. Friday, June 21st at 8 p.m. this group will give an organ and vocal recital at Christ Church, Bay St. Louis.

'Street Talk' response on flag burning clarified

To the Editor:

The following comments refer to the June 21 issue of the question asked in the Street Talk feature, "Do you think there should be a constitutional amendment to protect the flag?"

The answer given under Herbert Starr's name, stating to the effect, "Because Russia has done the same," is in error.

The thought given here, was that if Russia can make changes in her constitution, why can't the United States?

The answer that was given was taken out of context, has nothing to do with the issue of flag burning, or to imply that any such amendment to ban flag burning has ever been drawn up or passed under the constitution of Russia.

There is definitely something wrong with the constitution of these United States, when it allows our flag, that represents our country to be burned, walked on or mutilated after our men and women have died to protect our freedom. I don't believe that this is free speech.

There should definitely be a constitutional amendment to protect the flag of our beloved country.

Governor's motives for BEST state lottery questioned

Dear Editor,

I have never believed for a moment that the proposed state lottery to fund the education reform package would generate the numbers which are being suggested by the governor and others who back such a gamble.

I have viewed as regrettable that our Harvard educated governor would propose to fund a program called Better Education for Success Tomorrow (BEST) with a state lottery which (1) is presently illegal, (2) sends a message to our children and youth that success doesn't really come through better education and hard work but by being lucky, and (3) makes victims of the poor who are enticed to try for "that one big win."

However, whether it is viewed as regrettable or not, I am now told that, in hindsight, such a drastic proposal should have been predictable. Why?

—Mississippi governor makes trips to New York for planning sessions concerning education reform. Why New York, Mississippians wonder?

—With no apparent logic, our governor then introduces "his" idea for financing education reform with a lottery.

—No one under the dome in Jackson really believes that the lottery will generate the kind of numbers which are being suggested.

—Since the lottery will certainly fail to raise the predicted revenue, alternative funding will have to be considered.

—An alternative funding plan will probably include a bond issue.

—Financing for such a bond issue will most likely come from New York underwriters. Additionally, lottery bill passage will mean the outflow of big bucks from Mississippi to New York.

Could this scenario be closer to reality than many would like to admit? Time will tell.

Skateboarding kids looking for place to improve skills

BY TRACI BONNEY

If you're a kid who isn't old enough to drive and doesn't have a bicycle, how do you get around town?

You grab your skateboard and hit the road, right?

Wrong.

Local skateboarders have been warned to stay off the streets, so most of them confine their skating to the sidewalks. Skateboarders say this poses two problems.

First, they say, local business owners don't take kindly to children skateboarding in front of their businesses.

Second, some stretches of street don't have sidewalks.

These are only some of the things that worry skateboarders like April Fowler, her brother Kenneth and their friends.

April, Kenneth and friend Jesse Pursley stopped skating long enough Thursday afternoon to talk about their concerns.

Near the top of their list is concern with what local residents think of them. April said, "We want people to know skateboarders are good kids. A lot of them think we're bad kids."

"Devil worshippers," Kenneth added.

"They think we're in gangs and stuff," Jesse commented.

Some may have the impression that skateboarders are a bunch of idle children running wild. April said that just the opposite is true.

Most local skateboarders belong to clubs, she said, two of which are Team Ace and Team Epic. Skaters in these clubs go to meetings, practice, learn new tricks and go to competitions.

Another concern is a place to skate. They are currently using the Valena C. Jones gym two days a week, but the three claim the place is not large enough and doesn't have enough ramps to really practice.

Suggestions from the three include either putting sidewalks all over Bay St. Louis and Waveland or building a skateboard park.

They even have ideas about where they'd like to see the park. The list includes a field behind Bay High School, an area near Winn-Dixie and another by Dairy Queen.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Edward A. "Eddie" Favre said the Hancock County Youth Task Force is working to provide both skateboarders and bicycle riders with a park.

"We are looking at a permanent site for a county youth center, which will include a skate park and a bike park. Nothing is definite at this time.

"We also are looking for an interim site for the kids. We've purchased some skateboard ramps, and we're looking for a place to put them."

Addressing the children's remarks about business owners, Favre said he thinks the owners' main concern is that a skateboarder will bump into or knock down a customer entering or leaving a business.

He said he knows the children may think the city and county are "down on them, but if we were down on skateboarders, you can rest assured they wouldn't be using the gym."

"All we're asking for right now is a little cooperation and a little bit more patience from the kids."

HNC eleven gearing up; sweeps spring jamboree

From Staff Reports

Last month the Hancock North Central football team accomplished a feat that had never before happened in this area.

On Saturday, May 19 the Hawks played Moss Point, Biloxi, and Gulfport in a spring jamboree held in Moss Point. Each team played one another in a 16-minute scrimmage under full game conditions.

When the dust settled at the end of the evening, the Hawks emerged victorious over all three 5A opponents, beating Moss Point 7-6, Biloxi 7-0, and Gulfport 7-4.

"We were definitely the surprise over there that day," said head coach Irvin Favre.

"People came expecting to see us get blown out. What impressed me was how well we played on offense in controlling the football. Our kids played hard."

"Our quarterbacks, Regan Ladner and Jeff Favre, both had good games. Jerome Vince, our running back, did a super job. Terrance Goff didn't play because of disciplinary problems, but he is such a fine athlete we hope he can eliminate the outside distractions and be a real asset to our team."

In winning the opening game of the jamboree against Moss Point, the Hawks moved the football while not allowing Moss Point to cash in on a lot of scoring opportunities.

The Biloxi contest wound up 7-0 in favor of HNC, as the Indians misfired several times and dropped three punts which gave Hancock great field position.

The Hawks toppled Gulfport 7-4, as the Admirals recorded their two safeties on a HNC dropped punt and a Hawk goal-line stand in which Hancock took over deep in their own territory. An all-out blitz by Gulfport's defense caught HNC in their endzone.

The experience and cohesiveness of the Hancock coaching staff was a big factor in helping the Hawks keep their poise against the much larger 5A opponents. Assistant coaches Rocky Gaudin, Tim Favre, and Joe Shaw have all worked with Irvin Favre for over ten years.

"As a staff, we all know what we have to do to get ready for an opponent, and we just go out

"It wasn't that I thought we were good enough to play against these schools, it's just that we got ourselves in a jam in the spring and had nobody to play against. So we were either going to go over there and play Regan works real hard and has a good attitude. We may even plateau during the season. Either way, I feel very confident at that position," said Favre.

Favre, a tough competitor who has spent over two decades building Hancock North Central into a football powerhouse, does not issue praise easily. But he does give credit when it is due.

"No doubt about the fact that our kids are a hard-nosed, aggressive bunch. They showed it in the spring. We've got a few problems here and there but I'm sure we'll correct them and be a contending team."

"We know we have a good football team and I will be disappointed if we do not have a good season and win the district next year" and do it. Maybe because we know each other so well we don't have to do as much outside preparation as some other coaches."

"Our line can be a very good line, although we are inexperienced and don't have a lot of depth."

Starting at center was Otis DeReyna, with David King and Brodie Forrest at guards. The tackles were Steve Miller and Jonathan Fletcher, while Dennis Devilliss and Cody Scianna played at the ends. Chad Farve, another end, was injured earlier in training and saw no action.

The Hawks can't rest on their spring laurels, as they open the season against d'Iberville on the road. Although Hancock easily handled the Warriors last season in winning the District 4A championship, Coach Favre has challenged his team.

"I told our kids after the jamboree that this is just a starting point for us. We know we have a good football team and I will be disappointed if we do not have a good season and win the district next year."

"But we were weak in a couple of spots. Our coaches saw it and have to correct these areas, because we know other coaches saw them also."

Before the jamboree, several people expressed concern over 4A Hancock's ability to compete against three 5A schools that the Hawks had never met before.

these people, or not play at all," explained Favre.

"We wanted to put our kids under actual game situations involving special teams and punt returns so that we can review every phase of the game on film. This gives us good insight into which areas need improvement."

Defensively, the Hawks appear very sound, with Jeff Favre leading the defense at safety.

"Jeff is very smart, and has a lot of football knowledge. He takes control of a game back there. He's got his head in the game and is like our quarterback on defense."

On offense, the battle for quarterback is a good one between Regan Ladner and Jeff Favre.

"Right now I would say Regan has the upper hand."

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

I sometimes wish that the "weathermen" had never found out about the "heat index" or at least hadn't told us about it! It just makes me feel even hotter these sizzling summer days. How about you?

I was happily stirring pots in the kitchen the other afternoon with air-conditioning and ceiling fans working away to keep the house comfortable, when the afternoon newscasts came on, and I grew "hotter under the collar" just from hearing about the heat!

Most of us like to get in and out of the kitchen as quickly as possible these days, but the family still has to eat! Salads and stir-frying or quick sauteeing of meat or fish or fowl and vegetables puts a meal on the table quickly. Or, mix up a casserole in the relative cool (?) of the morning or evening, and let it cook itself while you exit the kitchen for cooler spots. Or, let your crockpot or other appliance do the work for you.

The colorful mounds of fresh vegetables at our area supermarkets beckon to the cook seeking a fast but nutritious meal for the family; for, no longer do we cook our vegetables "down and down," most of us cook them rather quickly in a minimum amount of water or other liquid.

Corn is in plentiful supply at the markets, at good prices, along with tomatoes and bell (green) peppers and cucumbers and summer squash, and zucchini, for example. I like to mix them all up together and saute them in a bit of oil for a "vegetable plate" luncheon or dinner when the weather's so hot, or serve them the next day cold as a salad, with splashes of olive oil and vinegar.

I like bell peppers as seasoning also in salads with onions and tomatoes. I like to stuff the peppers with shrimp or ground meat and bake them, just as I do with summer squash or eggplant or such.

Especially do I savor the combination of fresh corn and fresh tomatoes, as in:

TOMATOES AND CORN, CREOLE STYLE

2 slices bacon, chopped
1 large onion, chopped
1 medium bell pepper, chopped
2 1/2 cups peeled and chopped tomatoes
1/2 bay leaf
2 cups fresh corn cut from the cob

Dashes of pepper, salt to taste

Cook bacon crisp, remove from skillet, reserving drippings in skillet. Crumble bacon and set aside. Sauté the onion and bell pepper in the drippings until tender. Add the tomatoes and bay leaf, and bring to a boil.

Reduce the heat, and simmer for five minutes, stirring from time to time. Stir in the corn, and return to a boil. Again, reduce the heat, and simmer for five minutes more, adding seasonings. Remove the bay leaf, and sprinkle bacon over the dish before serving. (Six servings).

And, you'll like:

PLANTATION CORN PUDDING

2 cups fresh corn cut from cob
1 Tblsp. flour
1 Tblsp. sugar
Dash of grated nutmeg, dash of pepper
3 eggs, beaten
1 cup cream or half and half
3 Tblsp. melted butter
(When you cut the corn kernels from the cob, scrape the pulp out with a knife, as this helps thicken the pudding.) Mix the corn with a generous tablespoon of flour, and the pepper and nutmeg. Beat the eggs until lemon colored, and add to the corn mixture, along with a cup of cream (or half and half evaporated milk). Add the melted butter, and pour into a greased baking dish.

Set the dish in a pan of warm water, and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for a half hour or so, or until firm. (The old family recipe says "until a silver knife comes out clean when inserted halfway between the center and the edge of the dish"—but a toothpick or straw will do the job! (Six servings)—from my cookbook "Cooking Up a Storm"

In the meat category, boneless rump roasts at special prices, along with round steaks and rump roasts, head up the beef department. Hickory smoked hams and picnic hams are also offered, as are chicken breasts and leg quarters, and turkey wings. Take your choice and cook your dinner!

There's also ground beef of your choice and taste, and ground turkey for those quick summertime meals, especially with the youngsters on vacation from school—and always hungry, hungry! And, let's not forget the cold cuts. Combine these with canned pork and beans quickly heated up in a saucepan atop the stove when you're in a hurry or don't want to turn on the oven (just add some ketchup and chopped onions; the kids will love it!).

And, for that "sweet" for the sweet tooth—what's better than some of the peaches or grapes or nectarines or pears now starring at the markets?

Shannon Maggio, a 1990 graduate of Our Lady Academy, was selected as the Hancock County Exchange Club Student of the Year.

The four schools that participated were Our Lady Academy, St. Stanislaus, Bay Senior High School and North Central High School.

Eight students were selected by the schools to participate in the Exchange Club Student of the Month program. Each student wrote a paper on individual responsibility entitled "The Heartbeat of Freedom."

The education committee of the Exchange Club selected the Student of the Year through measurements of higher achievements, awards, school activities, club activities, athletics, community activities, religious service organizations and the paper which was read to the club by the student.

Maggio was valedictorian, a National Merit Finalist, National Honor Society member and Star student. She placed third of 403 people in biology at the State Math and Science Tournament and was first in English in an Engineering Technical Society competition.

She played on the volleyball and tennis teams and was a member of the OLA Campus Ministry.

Maggio plans to attend Duke University in the fall.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Teasing and taunting

Traffic was beginning to build in Houston as the topside of the rush hour became ever more evident. In cync with the rush hour, schoolchildren rushed out of the classrooms and down the streets or into waiting buses. This awakening of the rush hour plus dismissal from school is sometimes a recipe for tragedy.

And so it was that Wednesday afternoon when two second-graders were walking home from school with several schoolmates. The two tykes began teasing and hitting one another, until names and epithets were flying thick and heavy. Although it is not certain whether the name-calling followed along the racial lines of Hispanic and Black, the eventual result was painfully clear.

Stung by the blows and even more by the barbs, the beleaguered seven-year-old Hispanic dashed out into the street directly into the path of a school bus.

The pitiable bus driver had just deposited her last rider of the day when she looked down to see the heedless child flying ahead of her. Brakes were of virtually no avail as the heavy bus swatted the child dead instantly.

Webster defines tease: "To vex, harass or irritate by petty requests, or by jests and railery; plague."

That definition admits at least a couple of quite distinct meanings, enough to cause confusion among people. The Germans, for instance, have a saying which embraces the positive definition of teasing: "People who love each other tease each other."

I can readily relate to that saying, since I am one who likes both to tease and be teased. By the same token, however, I am fully aware that there are many people who do not like to tease or to be teased, not even when the teasing is well-meant.

All the more, when the teasing is negative and ill-intended, the word "taunting" is much more accurate for describing what is taking place. Certainly, the little Hispanic child was taunted, not merely teased. Anytime racial or ethnic epithets, slurs or put-downs are involved, surely taunting is the action at hand, and that action has become very abusive and destructive.

While there are many people who do not like to be teased under any circumstances, there are also those bunglers who do not know how to tease without always coming off as obnoxious. Little understanding is required to see that either or the combination of these makes teasing an extremely dangerous practice.

It is unlikely that many people stop to think of it, but malicious teasing is a form of ill-wishing or cursing. It says to the victim being teased: "I am so glad that you are in worse condition than I am in. I am happy that I can poke fun at your lowness of birth, your mean status in life, your many misfortunes, your lack of success in life, your weakness, your ineptitude."

Since it is a form of cursing, such negative teasing is just as anti-Christian as is ill-wishing. It is to be avoided as much as the goodwill of Christmas is to be embraced. To reverse the German saying, "People who hate each other taunt each other."

On the other hand, playful, positive teasing, when timely, within reason, and selective as to "victims" who enjoy being teased, can be a great tool of fun and laughter, not to mention a strong demonstration of affection, time-consuming attention, joy in another's presence, and repeated affirmation.

These positive aspects of teasing often run so deep that very many people would be lost if their friends did not tease them every day. Yes, "People who love each other tease each other."

Commodities to be distributed Tuesday

The Hancock County Department of Human Services will distribute USDA commodities—raisins, butter, cornmeal, honey, green beans and peanut butter on Tuesday, June 26 at the National Guard Armory on Longfellow Road.

Distribution hours will be from 9:30 a.m. until all of the commodities are gone, but no later than 2 p.m.

Eligible recipients are those who receive food stamps, or low income households who have applied for commodities at the welfare department and have been determined eligible.

Participants are reminded that they must bring their signed voucher with them in order to receive commodities. If a participant wishes to have someone else pick up his commodities, he must sign the voucher on the front and on the back and the person picking up the commodities must sign it on the back and bring it to the distribution site.

Participants are reminded that they can only pick up commodities for two households at a time and that they will have to carry the commodities they pick up.

Non-food stamp recipients may apply for commodities at the Department of Human Services (welfare department) through Tuesday, June 26 (the day of distribution). Applications will not be taken at the distribution site.

Vacation Bible School

Biblical, practical teaching combined in week of summertime fun for 300

BY TRACI BONNEY

Scriptures, snacks and sunny-day fun — these are some of the things that make up Vacation Bible School.

First Baptist Church of Bay St. Louis held its largest-ever Vacation Bible School — VBS for short — this week. The staff had prepared for 200 children, but found them-children and teenagers memorized the books of the Bible and several Scripture verses.

Carr said the craft activities were geared for the most part toward reinforcing the lesson taught that day.

"The younger children also had a Home Living Unit," she said. "They learned a little about housekeeping, cleaning up vice Friday included a decision service for third through eighth grade students, where those who chose to do so came forward publicly to say they had accepted Jesus as personal Lord and Savior.

Carr said no one pushes the children into the decision. The staff counsels the students and explains to them what such a choice means, but the

"Every year we get one or two teachers who say they don't want to do this the next year," Carr said.

She smiled slyly and added, "But they usually forget about that by the next year and I can talk them into doing it again."

herding 300 for a week of Bible teaching, arts and crafts and physical activity.

VBS Director Gail Carr said the school accepts children of all denominations, from three years old to the eighth grade.

Carr, who has been the school's director for the past eight years, said the majority of those attending in the early years were preschoolers. Now, though, more children are attending in the first- to fourth-grade age group.

The school was held last Monday through Friday from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. The younger children had a time each day of hearing Bible stories such as "David and Goliath" and "Jonah and the Whale", while the older their rooms, things like that."

Meanwhile, one of the older classes filmed a videotape on the history of the Bible. The tape was shown at the commencement service Friday night.

"We don't stick to just Baptist teaching," Carr said. "We stick to the Bible."

She added with a chuckle, "We're not trying to make everyone into Baptists here."

"In fact, we encourage the children to go back to their own churches and share what they've learned at VBS."

The staff at VBS does teach the children the story of Jesus' death and resurrection, Carr said.

The commencement ser-decision is up to the students themselves.

"We get a list of the children's parents and churches. If a child does make the decision, we contact the parents and pastor and tell them about it, so the family and church can take it from there and handle it whatever way they do."

"We have decisions every year, sometimes only one or two, sometimes several."

Carr and her assistant Roberta Harvill start planning for VBS in January. They work out schedules, order supplies and start lining up teachers and assistants.

Crafts and more

A variety of crafts were designed by students of First Baptist Church Vacation Bible School last week. Upper right, first and second graders construct bird feeders made from pine cones rolled in peanut butter and nuts; below, four-year-olds enjoy popcorn during a refreshment break; and Elizabeth Kimmel assists in a mosaic fish art project.

Hancock County Lions Club

The State of Mississippi Association of Lions Clubs held its state convention in Tupelo in May. The Council of Governors presided over the business sessions. International President William L. Woolard from Charlotte, N.C. was special guest.

Lions from Hancock County attending were Raymond Rome, president; Lucille Boudreaux, secretary; Eula Rome, treasurer, and Wanda and Charles Berthelot.

"With their new-found freedoms, there're some exciting things happening over there," he said.

He said Lions Club International was the first service organization to form clubs in Eastern Bloc countries. Seven clubs have been organized in Poland during his term of office. Others are being founded in Hungary, Czechoslovakia and East Germany.

Woolard also stated that "before a Lions Club tries to establish a group in a new country, the headquarters requires the government officials to sign a resolution to allow the clubs to function there the same as we do, but we have to be certain the people want us to come in, subscribe to our policies and exclude politics and religion from their mission."

Woolard extended a special invitation to all women to join the Lions Club in their community and get involved in the motto, "We Serve."

Membership in the Lions Club is by invitation only. The Hancock Lions Club has tripled its membership.

New members inducted into the service league include Charles and Wanda Berthelot, Mark Moore, Matthew Karl, Victor Frankiewicz Jr. and Amelia Peebles.

Board members and directors are, two years, Loney Necaise and Mark Moore; one year, Joyce Bermond and Wanda Berthelot. The Hancock County Lions Club wishes to thank the community for contributions to the can shake.

The club adopted two miles of Hwy. 90 and received a thank-you note from Ronnie Shaws, Southern District highway commissioner, for taking part in the anti-litter campaign.

The club collected more than 25 bags of litter on Trash Bash Day while some 13,000 bags of litter were collected and disposed of all over the state.

The Hancock County Lions Club has screened 1,528 students in the county schools and had 61 referrals for glasses. The club purchased 25 pair of glasses for the community and two hearing aids, gave food to the Food Pantry valued at $300 and collected 200 pairs of glasses and donated them to the separation center and honored the law enforcement officers of Hancock County with coffee and donuts.

The club also gave food baskets during the holidays. Patients in the nursing home were honored with gifts and personal items.

"We wish to thank our community for the support you have shown us, as it takes all of us working together to make our community a better place in which to live," said spokesman Lucille Boudreaux.

Installation of officers will be Saturday, June 30 at 7 p.m. at the Hancock County Community Center, Hwy. 90 West Service Road by Spiers Auto Salvage, corner Harbor Drive.

Cameron named runner-up as District Five teacher

Freda Cameron of Bay St. Louis was named runner-up for the 1990 Fifth Congressional District Teacher of the Year Award.

Each school in the district was asked to participate by nominating one teacher for the honor. The teachers were nominated by the other teachers in the schools.

This year's recipient is Mrs. Martha G. Dow of Petal High School.

Cameron has 24 years of teaching experience with the Bay St. Louis/Waveland School District. She teaches Typewriting I and II, Clerical Office Practice and Keyboarding.

She received an associate degree in business education from Pearl River Community College, a bachelor of science in business education from the University of Southern Mississippi and a master of science in business education from the University of Southern Mississippi, William Carey College.

Cameron is a member of the Mississippi Professional Educators, the Bay St. Louis Association of Professional Educators and the Mississippi Business Education Association.

Her past honors include: Teacher of the Month, Bay St.

Louis Rotary Club; Teacher of the Year, Bay St. Louis Rotary Club; and Bay High School Yearbook dedication.

In the community, she has organized blood drives for the American Red Cross and promoted a yearly donation to the Emily de Montluzin Foreign Language Scholarship.

She serves on the nominating committee for the Katrina Overall McDonald Memorial Scholarship and is responsible for conducting fundraisers to aid the people of the Saltillo Mission in Mexico.

Delchamps introduces recycling program

Delchamps Inc., the Mobile, Alabama based supermarket chain has announced it has instituted a new in-store aluminum can recycling program in its supermarkets in Waveland.

The program will be introduced in all of the company's supermarkets chainwide.

Delchamps is the first major supermarket chain in its four-state operating area to introduce a recycling program. The company operates 110 stores in Mississippi, Florida, Alabama and Louisiana.

According to company president Randy Delchamps, the recycling issue is a priority at Delchamps.

"Our philosophy includes a commitment to our customers and the communities where we do business," said Delchamps. "Recycling to protect natural resources and conserve landfill space is part of that commitment."

Under the program, each Delchamps Super Market will be set up with a special recycling bin. Customers who bring in aluminum cans for recycling will receive a competitive price per pound in the form of a Delchamps Recycling Coupon.

The coupon can then be used in one of three ways: a customer may choose to cash the coupon in, use the coupon toward purchases at Delchamps, or donate the money to a favorite charity.

The key to a successful recycling program is to make it easy, convenient and fun.

"All the information we have at our disposal would indicate that recycling may very well become a way of life in the near future," said Delchamps.

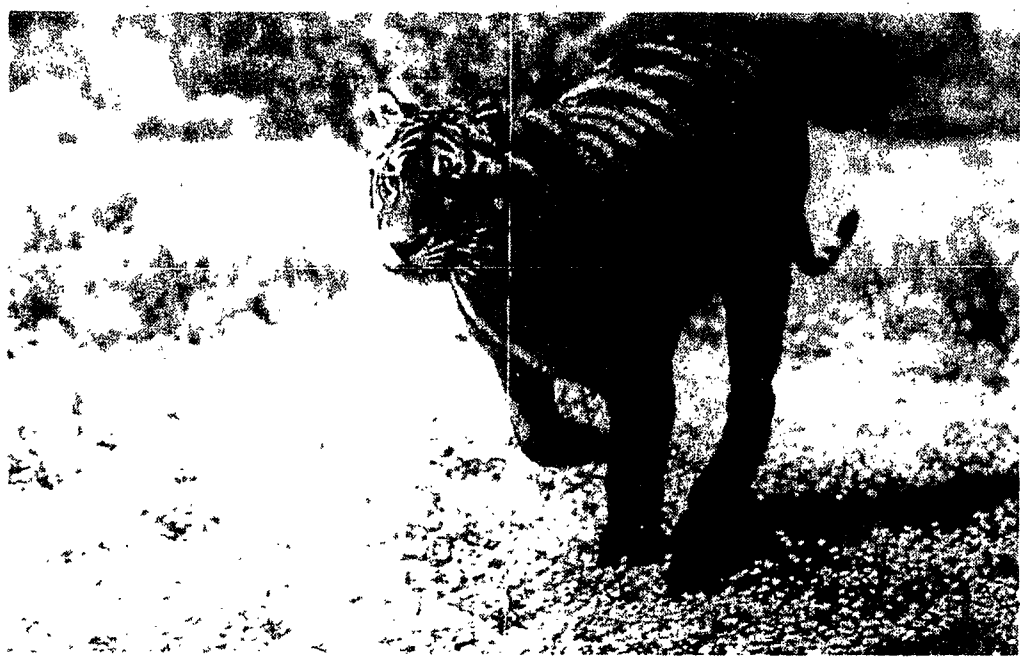

"That's why we feel a strong commitment to make this program work, and the best way to do that is to make recycling easy and convenient for our customers and do our part in educating the general public regarding the short-term and long-term advantages of recycling."

The Delchamps recycling program is not just for adults either. Children will also learn about recycling and its benefits. A special character—a life-size red, white and blue aluminum can—has been developed and will act as the spokesperson for the company's recycling program. Other special programs designed to involve kids in recycling are currently under development at Delchamps.

Guessing won't make garden soil fertile

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Too much fertilizer or too little fertilizer on the vegetable garden—they're both easy to do. Just as easy to do is putting it out at the wrong time or in the wrong way. An all-too-common approach to fertilizing vegetable gardens is to put out some before planting and then to put out some more as the plants grow, especially when they aren't growing as expected.

in Mississippi Gardens

We've all heard too much of a good thing can be bad and then decided we'd like to give it a try with money to see if it's true.

When it comes to fertilizer and the garden, it's a well established fact that too much is definitely bad.

Plants need different nutrients for good growth. Most of these nutrients are supplied by the soil. Gardeners don't have to be overly concerned because vegetable plants don't require much nutrients and the soil has an adequate supply of them.

Most common garden fertilizers contain a mix of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium. It is the misapplication of these complete mixed fertilizers that causes the most problems.

According to recommendations based on soil test results, most gardeners should apply some fertilizer to the garden soil and mix it in before planting seeds or vegetable transplants. This initial application of fertilizer frequently contains all the phosphorus and potassium the vegetable plants need to grow, but it may not contain all the needed nitrogen.

Nitrogen is one plant nutrient that moves easily in the soil. If all the nitrogen necessary for a particular vegetable is applied before planting, it may injure the young seedlings. Much of it may move out of the root zone during the initial weeks of plant growth and not be there when the plants really need it.

To prevent this from happening, only a portion of the total nitrogen is applied before planting and additional nitrogen is applied as a sidedressing as the plants grow. This additional nitrogen, as a sidedressing, is placed in or on the soil where the plants' roots are growing.

Not all vegetables need the same amount of nitrogen, so the amount or number of applications can vary. Garden sweet corn is normally sidedressed twice as it is growing; once when about 8 inches high and again when 1 to 24 inches high.

Southern peas belong to a group of plants that can use nitrogen from the air so they generally aren't sidedressed.

Tomato and pepper plants may be sidedressed three or four times because they are in the garden for such a long length of time.

Timing of fertilizer application is as important as the amount. If applied too early, it may damage young vegetable plants. If applied too late, vegetable plants may be stunted and unable to resume normal growth.

Times and amounts of sidedress nitrogen for different vegetables are in the Garden Tabloid, Extension Publication 1091, available at all county extension offices.

While too much fertilizer can injure vegetable plants by damaging the roots, any granular fertilizer on the leaves can burn them. At some point between just enough and too much fertilizer that damages the roots, there is a level where certain vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers, okra, Southern peas and pole beans respond by growing so rapidly that the plants make nothing but leaves.

When vegetable plants have been overfertilized and the roots injured, the plants don't look thrifty. Many gardeners thinking the plants are starving, react by applying additional fertilizer. This only worsens the situation.

It is not always easy to judge from appearance if plants are suffering from over- or underfertilization. Getting a soil test and requesting a total soluble salts determination can provide the answer.

If you haven't had your garden soil tested this year, check with your county extension office for instructions and sample collecting materials. Even though your garden is already growing, it is better to test now rather than not at all and continue making mistakes in fertilization.

DOWN HOME

By Darlene Underwood
Hancock County
Home Economist

Eating out is in

According to recent restaurant industry surveys, Americans eat more than 20 percent of their meals away from home—in restaurants, cafeterias, pizza and sandwich shops, fast-food restaurants and even convenience stores.

Fast-food restaurants account for four of every 10 meals eaten in commercial eating establishments.

The trend in eating out is a result of busier lifestyles that emphasize convenience. Americans spend more than 40 percent of their food dollar and consume roughly a third of their calories and total fat eating out.

Recent USDA research shows that consumers may feel eating out is a time to "relax the rules" and that, as customers, they may have little say over how the food is prepared.

While it is true that consumers have less control over how foods are prepared when they eat out, they do have control over which restaurants they choose, which foods they choose and how much they eat.

The type of restaurant you go to has a big effect on your food choices. Full-service restaurants provide the greatest variety and flexibility in the types of foods available and in preparation methods.

Since items are often prepared to order, you can ask to have your food cooked differently than the menu may specify. This may require extra time, so be prepared to wait.

Restaurants vary in their ability to respond to your requests. Among the things they may be able to do are change their preparation methods, limit added fat and salt, reduce the portion size or serve sauces on the side.

You can either ask your waiter or waitress about these options or call ahead to find out if your special requests can be accommodated.

Sitting and talking makes meals eaten out enjoyable. But remember, calories, fat and sodium add up quickly if you're not paying attention to how much you're eating.

If you are having an appetizer before the meal, go easy on foods such as potato chips, peanuts, pretzels, dips and battered foods (cheese sticks, vegetables, chicken pieces). Instead, fill up on raw vegetables, steam seafood or fruit.

If you choose soup, have a cup rather than a bowl; most soups are high in sodium. Broth- and tomato-based soups are lower in fat than creamed types. Many crackers are high in fat and sodium so enjoy just a few and limit the spreads and dips.

When selecting a main course, choose meat, poultry or fish that is broiled, grilled, baked, steamed or poached rather than fried.

Broiled or grilled entrees could be basted with fat, so request that lemon juice, wine or only a small amount of fat be used with yours. Choose dishes flavored with herbs and spices rather than with rich sauces, gravies or dressings.
